

BCVA Winter Meeting
Bluetongue
Wednesday 6th February 2008
British Dental Association, London

I would like to take this opportunity to announce the release of the draft programme for the one day BCVA Winter meeting to be held purely on the subject of Bluetongue in London on the 6th of February 2008.

This meeting is the first to be organised in the UK primarily for veterinary practitioners to attend on the subject of Bluetongue, and is an extension of an event held in collaboration with the Sheep Veterinary Society and Defra in 2007. It will provide practitioners with the information they require to deal with the potential effects of Bluetongue virus within their practices and also provide an opportunity for veterinary surgeons from all disciplines to discuss various aspects of the disease. The programme is attached for your information, which includes speakers confirmed to date.

This programme has been devised with the help of the Sheep Veterinary Society and Goat Veterinary Society and, as a courtesy and in the interests of disseminating as much up-to-date and accurate information as possible to a wide audience, we shall also be informing members of those associations about the meeting and allowing them to attend as delegates if they wish. Numbers will be limited to the size of the venue, and so I encourage you to book early.

I hope you will be interested in attending what is likely to be an important event in the veterinary calendar for 2008.

Carl Padgett
President
